GUIDANCE

HI STUDENTS,

We've noticed how tired you are from studying for the mini assessments. Hang in there – midterm break is around the corner! We hope the assessments are going well for you; they are great training for the main event in June.

OPEN DAYS

Open day season continues with Ulster University this week. Ulster University have fantastic courses available in healthcare such as physiotherapy, pharmacy and nursing. Fees are half of those on mainland UK, with free fess for some courses and these course have been more accessible than similar courses in Dublin in recent years. Well worth checking out.

UCAS

The first deadline is this Friday 15th January. It is absolutely imperative to have everything uploaded by Wednesday 13th morning so that we can check for any omissions or errors. Well done to those of you have already submitted their applications – it always looks good to submit before the deadline.

WEEKLY WEBINAR

Thank you to our friend Dr. John McGinnity from Maynooth University for his excellent webinar on ARTS and Humanities as well as other fantastic options at Maynooth University. Maynooth University is increasing in popularity among IOE students and fifty of our class of 2021 have just started courses this term. If you missed this webinar, it's available with our other recordings on Moodle. This week's webinar is focusing on alternative healthcare degrees – optometry, molecular diagnostics, clinical measurement and many more.

Best of luck in the last of your mini assessments and enjoy the feeling of accomplishment when you're finished.

Have a great week!
